A +1.5 spread is commonly seen in baseball betting, the standard runline for MLB. This split means the underdog must win by exactly one run or lose by exactly one run. Alternatively, a -1.5 spread means that a favorite must win by at least two runs. Many baseball gamblers have decided on fewer (than two) runs.

Spreads in sports betting are often used to level the playing field. For example, a -1.5 spread means the favorite must win by at least two runs. This is often used for teams that are favored to win. The spread is used to determine the outcome of the bet. If the favorite wins by two or more runs, the bet is a win. If the favorite wins by one run, the bet is a push. If the favorite loses or wins by less than one run, the bet is a loss.
